MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

DEAN BOWMAN

The nationwide trend toward increasing numbers of applications for admission to law school has made itself felt at Wake Forest. Even though the Law School has admitted a first-year class of 101 (the largest first-year class in the history of the School), many well-qualified applicants failed to gain admission because we simply ran out of room. We were, in fact, able to admit only one out of seven applicants. This fall we have received more applications than during the same period a year ago, so it appears safe to predict that once again we shall have to turn away many qualified applicants.

Our total enrollment this fall is 290. All of our facilities, but particularly the law library and the first-year classroom, are severely overcrowded. We badly need additional space for the benefit of our present crop of students, inasmuch as our current enrollment exceeds the capacity of the existing building.

As most of you know, a campaign is underway to raise funds for the construction of an addition to the Law Building. The projected cost of the addition is approximately $500,000. It will contain a large amphitheatre classroom with seating for 148 students and another classroom capable of seating 120. It will also contain five faculty offices, a faculty lounge, two floors devoted to library reading, study and stack areas, a small conference-seminar room, a new student lounge, two offices for student activities, and additional toilet facilities for both men and women. This addition to the building will make it possible for our enrollment to rise gradually to a projected maximum of 440. With any such increase in enrollment, there will be additions to the faculty so as to maintain a healthy student-faculty ratio and to permit the offering of a broader and deeper curriculum. The additional space will greatly enhance the ability of the School to carry on the splendid tradition of quality and service that has marked its past.

The building fund campaign is off to a good start and the early returns are most encouraging. If contributions continue to come in at the present rate, it seems quite likely that construction on the addition can be started this fall. We are immensely grateful to all of you who either have worked in the campaign or have made contributions to the building fund. Particular thanks are due James W. Mason and Leon L. Rice, Jr., who are serving as co-chairmen of the major gifts portion of the campaign, and Philip B. Whiting, President of the Law Alumni Association. Their leadership has been invaluable.

Special mention also should be made of those alumni who have headed up the campaign in their particular judicial districts. They have worked hard for the Law School and they have obtained outstanding results. These district chairmen are as follows: Russell E. Twiford, Elizabeth City, Edgar Gurganus, Williamston, Kennedy W. Ward, New Bern, Wilbert M. Faircloth, Clinton, E. C. Thompson, III, Warsaw, Addison Hewlett, Wilmington, Robert Carey Josey, III, Roanoke Rapids, M. Alexander Biggs, Jr., Rocky Mount, W. Powell Bland, Goldsboro, Robert Dunn Holleman, Durham, Samuel Behrends, Raleigh, David K. Stewart, Dunn, Stephen N. Nimmoicks, Fayetteville, W. Earl Britt, Fairmont, John H. Vernon, Burlington, S. J. Webster, Jr., Madison, John W. Hardy, Greensboro, W. E. Gavin, Asheboro, J. Elsie Webb, Rockingham, Grady Barnhill, Winston-Salem, Jack E. Klass, Lexington, R. Kyle Hayes, North Wilkesboro, Richard A. Williams, Newton, Emil F. Kratt, Charlotte, Fred A. Flowers, Shelby, Robert J. Robinson, Asheville, Frank L. Todd, Hendersonville, and Robert J. Leatherwood, III, Bryson City.

In addition, our special thanks go to several alumni who have undertaken to contact other alumni on behalf of the Law Alumni Association in several of the more populous areas of the state. These men are Lloyd F. Baucom, Charlotte, Sidney S. Eagles, Raleigh, Dan W. Fouts, Greensboro, and Murray C. Greason, Winston-Salem.

From my point of view, one of the happy by-products of the Law Building Campaign has been the opportunity it has afforded me to visit with many of our alumni in various parts of the country. Although I shall be delighted when the campaign reaches a successful conclusion, I hope that I can continue to meet periodically with groups of law alumni on their home grounds and to broaden my knowledge of our alumni and their views concerning the Law School.

With our enrollment at a record level, our faculty is having a very busy fall. Some relief will be provided in January, when Mr. George K. Walker will join our faculty as an Assistant Professor of Law. A biographical sketch of Mr. Walker appears elsewhere in this issue. During the Spring Semester he will teach Insurance and Legal Bibliography, and will work with our newly-organized Moot Court Board in the development of our Advocacy Program.

Through this expanded moot court program, we hope to increase substantially the number of students taking part in moot court activities and to ensure that the School is represented in the national and regional moot court competitions. The Moot Court Board will supervise the expanded program and is composed initially of second-year students. It is expected that the Moot Court Board will function in autonomous fashion and will become a self-perpetuating organization similar to the Law Review. It should provide another vehicle through which students can gain law review-type experience and otherwise sharpen the research, writing and advocacy skills that are so important in the practice of law.

Although our primary emphasis as a faculty is upon classroom teaching, the individual members of our faculty do find time to engage in scholarly research and writing. I am proud to report the recent publication of books by Professor James A. Webster and Richard G. Bell. Professor Webster's Real Estate Law in North Carolina, published by The Michie Company, is the definitive work on the principles of real estate law and practice in this State. Professor Bell's Negotiable Instruments Cases and Text is intended primarily for use in the classroom and has elicited much favorable comment from teachers of Negotiable Instruments.

The Student Bar Association, in cooperation with the Dean's Office, is once again running a placement service for third-year students seeking permanent employment and second-year students seeking summer jobs. We hope that any of you who may be thinking of adding a lawyer to your office will call on the services our placement program can provide. This program functioned very effectively last year, with virtually all of our 1971 graduates, other than those about to enter military service, having found employment in the legal field. Seven members of the class of 1971 have won much-coveted judicial clerkships; four of these men are with Federal District Court Judges in North Carolina, two are with Judges of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, and one is with a Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Our 1971 graduates fared well on the North Carolina Bar Examination. Of the 49 Wake Forest graduates taking the examination for the first time, 48 passed. Several of the 1971 graduates have taken bar examinations in other states; not all of these results are in yet, but the success rate thus far is 100%.

Hmecomng Day, November 6, promises to be a red-letter day in the history of the Law School. That is the day on which several hundred alumni will come to Wake Forest to receive their J. D. degrees in replacement of the LL.B. Approximately 575 alumni have applied for the new degree, and we expect the great majority of them to be present at the special award ceremony that will be held in Wait Chapel at 10:00 o'clock on Hmecomng morning. The principal speaker for this occasion will be Justice I. Beverly Lake. The ceremony will be followed by a buffet luncheon, which in turn will be followed by the Wake Forest-William and Mary game and the Law Alumni Association's annual cocktail party at the Sheraton Motor Inn. I hope that many of our alumni will be able to attend these events, and I am looking forward to visiting with as many of you as possible.

LAW SCHOOL NEWS IN BRIEF

WALKER JOINS FACULTY

GEORGE K. WALKER

George K. Walker of Charlottesville, Va. will join the law faculty as an assistant professor beginning with the Spring semester. Initially, Walker will teach Legal Bibliography and Insurance. Also, he will assist Professor Leon Corbett, Jr. with Practice Court I.

Walker received his B.A. degree in history at the University of Alabama in 1959. While at Alabama he served as secretary of the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. Between 1959 and 1962 Walker was on active duty with the United States Atlantic Fleet destroyer force. Presently he is a Lieutenant-Commander in the United States Naval Reserve.

Walker received his LL.B. from Vanderbilt University in 1966. While at Vanderbilt he served on the practice court executive board; problems editor; law school bar association board of governors; and editor of the school newspaper. He is a member of Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

Walker was a Woodrow Wilson Fellow (1962-63), receiving his M.A. in history from Duke University in 1968. Walker's thesis topic was "The Personal Relationship of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Winston Spencer Churchill, as Revealed by their Correspondence, 1937-41."

In 1966-67 Walker served as clerk for John D. Butzner, Jr. U. S. District Judge, Richmond, Va. In 1967 he joined the Richmond firm of Hunton, Williams, Gay, Powell, and Gibson. He resigned from that firm in 1970 to work on his Master of Laws degree at the University of Virginia. While completing that degree he is serving as a researcher and house counsel for the Crime Prevention Systems Corporation of Virginia. In this position he researches and drafts reports to local and state agencies on aspects of crime, juvenile delinquency, and related subjects.

A native of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, Walker is an Episcopal lay reader for the Diocese of Southern Virginia. His wife Phyllis is a native of Martinsville, Va. and they have one child.

WEBSTER PUBLISHES N. C. REAL PROPERTY

JAMES A. WEBSTER, JR.

The Michie Company recently published Real Estate Law in North Carolina by Wake Forest law professor Dr. James A. Webster, Jr. "Webster," says the company, "is the only thing since Mordecai," and notes that over a half century has passed since the publication of Mordecai's Law Lectures, 2d Edition (1919).

Emphasis is placed on "the creation, characteristics, and incidents of possessory estates in land and with the modes of transferring and acquiring ownership of real property of formal conveyances, adverse possession and prescription." The book also deals with acquisition of easements, and the transfer of title or interests in real property.

Over 100 pages of the nearly 700 page volume is devoted to the "Examination of Titles to Real Property in North Carolina." The publisher believes that this section, which outlines North Carolina procedure for checking land titles, will be particularly valuable to the young attorney who is just beginning his practice.

A cum laude graduate of both Wake Forest and Wake Forest School of Law, he was a recipient of a Ford Foundation scholarship for graduate study at Harvard. At Harvard Professor Webster was the only one of over one hundred graduate students in law to receive a doctorate.

Real Estate Law in North Carolina was developed and adapted from Dr. Webster's lectures and classroom materials. Dr. Webster, who teaches Real Property I and II, Future Interests, Municipal Corporations, and Urban Land Use Controls, first taught at Wake Forest Law School between 1951-52. After working in private practice for two years, he resumed teaching at Wake Forest in 1954. While in general practice in Reidsville and Leaksville (Eden) from 1952 until 1954, he served as chairman of the Rockingham County Board of Elections.

Dr. Webster has also served as a member of the North Carolina General Statutes Commission, as a research analyst for the State Commissioner of Revenue and for the General Assembly, Chairman of the committee drafting new laws relating to mechanics and materialmen's liens and as consultant to both the Commissioner of Insurance and the Attorney General.

Real Property in North Carolina is available through the publisher for $35.00 plus tax, postage, and a handling charge. A 15 day free examination is also available.

WAKE FOREST JURIST

PREYER KEYNOTES LAW DAY 1971

Sixth District Congressman Richardson Preyer told an overflow crowd at Wake Forest's 19th annual Law Day Banquet (April 23) that he senses a "widespread" loss of confidence in the American judicial system, but the former federal judge cautioned that while "It is tempting to decide in anger that we can no longer live with this system . . . the truth is that we cannot live without it."

Preyer quoted New York Mayor John V. Lindsey, "If the schools close down for a while, or if an outraged citizenry finally succeeds in tearing down city hall brick by brick, we will survive somehow, but if we lose the courts, we lose everything." Preyer added: "How easily we forget that it was the law that nurtured and protected the civil rights movement; that rescued many of the innocent victims of anti-communist hysteria in the days of McCarthyism. It is the law which guarantees that we can speak and write whatever conscience moves us to believe."

"The law forbids the use of coerced confessions, and by requiring the exclusion of illegally seized evidence, discourages invasions of our homes or our privacy. And we should note that not a single one of the great landmark decisions of the Supreme Court (including the Brown case and the political reapportionment case) was made under the threat of the gun or the mob . . . These things happened because of the growth of enlightenment and the development of the democratic idea."

Preyer argued that the legal profession itself must assume much of the responsibility for the loss of faith in the judicial system. The courts have opened the door to the charge of politicalization. He called the trial of the "Chicago 7," "a horrible blunder," and agreed with conservative columnist James J. Kilpatrick that "The defendants should have been tried, if at all, for throwing trash on the sidewalks. This the City might have proved. And the defendants would have wound up not triumphantly, as heroes, but ungloriously as litterbugs." Preyer added, "The courts should stick to what they do superbly — namely, try the facts—and stay away from what they do badly—trying general ideas."

Preyer feels that lawyers also are to blame "in that we had let the idea get abroad that we are only interested in maintaining the status quo, that we only serve the interests of the rich and powerful." But he added, "Fortunately, you young lawyers are changing all of this," and he cited interest in pro bono work for the poor and the consumer, Nader's Raiders, and neighborhood legal service projects.

"I personally believe that even a coal company deserves representation like any common felon, but the point being made is a good one. That is, that the function of the lawyer is to serve the individual as well as the institution, that it is to serve the public as well as the private interest."

Preyer concluded by telling the audience that "you have it within your power to restore faith in our judicial system. Beyond that, you, more than any other group in our society, have it in your power to restore confidence in our country."

"For you are trained to present reason to an age which seems to be raging toward some form of absolutism. Balance is your game in an age of fanatics and extremists. Your lawyer's instinct is for the firm, the tangible, the solid ground in an age of apocalyptic abstractions. In an age of cocktail party sociologists who blame everything on the Establishment (whatever that is), you know how to search out operative causes. Amid the torrents of talk, you have been taught to analyze."

On behalf of the law school, Captain Henry C. Lauerman presented William Randolph Loftis of Morganton the Warren A. Seavy Award. The Seavy Award was established by an alumnus in honor and appreciation of the distinguished legal educator and author, who was Visiting Professor at the Wake Forest School of Law during the 1960-61 and the 1962-63 school years. The award "is given to the student displaying the most proficiency in the combined subjects of Torts and Agency-Partnership."

Also, Associate Justice Joseph Branch, of the North Carolina Supreme Court, was awarded the school's "Outstanding Alumni Service Award." Mr. Justice Branch is a 1938 graduate of the Wake Forest School of Law.

Fraternities Move to New Home

Near the end of first semester last year a debate arose between the housing office and the law students. Beginning with the announcement that Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity would be asked to move from their old location in Poteat, a dialogue developed between those who sought the removal of all graduate students from the dorm and those who insisted that the present arrangement was sufficient to meet the needs of both the graduate and undergraduate communities. After much discussion, pro and con, it was decided that both legal fraternities would move into the former athletic dorm. So it was that Huffman, a dorm in need of much repair, was selected as the new quarters. Promises were made and speculation grew as to exactly what the new dorm would provide the law students. With the beginning of classes this fall, many questions about the new dorm and what it offers have arisen.

One of the primary questions centers around the space afforded by the new dorm: the lounge area is literally filled to overflowing with the remnants of two fraternity houses. There are no less than four large sofas in this small area. This first view of the dorm does not bring to mind the comfort talked about before the move. After leaving the lounge, one has a choice of two libraries in which to study. Each of the libraries has copies of the North Carolina General Statutes and the North Carolina Reports. This division seems to be workable in that it allows more students to study without being crowded. Moving downstairs one will find two television rooms. In one room is a color set and in the other a black and white set. Here more than anywhere else in the dorm the divisions between fraternities may be seen.

The room situation in the new dorm is not as bad as many had predicted. The rooms were renovated over the summer (in all but a few cases) and present a pleasing picture for those who had expected far less. The rooms are larger than the rooms used in the past, but problems have still arisen. The main problem seems to be that the dorm is not made up of all law and graduate students as had been hoped. There are undergraduates living on the third floor and in the basement. These students have no lounge of their own in the dorm. Understandably, this has caused friction between some of the law students and the undergraduates. The dorm is quieter than many of the former rooms made available to law students. Of the various students interviewed, most were in agreement that the rooms were satisfactory. There were of course a few students who expressed the feeling that the new accommodations and atmosphere is conducive to little more than complaining of the woes of this year and praising the glory of the past.

The idea of a graduate dorm is not new. It is an idea that has been used successfully in many other colleges and universities. It is based on the idea that graduate students have more in common with other graduate students and should therefore live together. For law students the potential of this situation is vast; it affords a closer contact between the students, allowing for more frequent discussions between members of the different classes. Prior to this year the law students were not as close together and the resultant cleavage between the students in the dorms became apparent. The new arrangement is somewhat like the English Inns of Court in that the lawyers, in this case future lawyers, live and eat together for the common good of all. Of course this dorm is not the only answer, but it is an admission that the law community is a vital part of the university and should not be forced to move off campus to help end the growing pangs of the undergraduate population. This dorm is another drawing card to present to future students, and it gives students a viable housing alternative. But like any other new project, it has weak points. Not all of the promises made to the fraternities before the move have been fulfilled, but given time the dorm can and will both enhance and advance the study of law at Wake Forest.

LAW REVIEW ARTICLE REPRINTED

Voir Dire — Use and Abuse by Judge E. Maurice Braswell, of Wake Forest Law Review 49 (1970) has been reprinted, in its entirety, in the NINTH ANNUAL DEFENDING CRIMINAL CASES FORUM.

Law Review Editor-in-Chief Richard C. Titus says the Law Review is "proud that one of the . . . articles has been reprinted for a national forum and particularly proud that a North Carolina judge's views have met with wide approval. We feel that this distinguishes the Law Review and enhances the Law School's fine reputation."

GORHAM WINS NCNB WILLS CONTEST

James Samuel Gorham, III ('71) has been named first place winner of North Carolina National Bank's annual Will Drafting Contest. A spokesman for the bank wrote Dr. E. McGruder Faris, Jr., "Your first place winner, which as you know was first place state wide, is clearly head and shoulders above all the entries. Your second place winner was very close to being the second place winner state wide." Don Voncannon was Wake Forest's second place winner.

In 1970 Robert C. Stephens' entry, which was Wake Forest's first place winner, took second place in the state wide competition; in 1969 first place winner Robert F. Fleming's entry won second prize on the state level.

The contest involves the preparation of a detailed analysis of a hypothetical situation, preparation of an estate plan, a detailed explanation of the plan in a letter directed to the client, and the preparation of required documents such as wills and trust agreements. To illustrate the amount of preparation an entry requires Dr. Faris notes that often the letter to the client is over 15 pages in length.

Gorham is now a clerk for U. S. District Judge Woodrow Jones.

NEW FOUNDATION RECEIVES GRANTS; APPROVES PROGRAMS

The Wake Forest University School of Law Foundation, which was recently incorporated, has received a $100,000 endowment gift from the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The foundation was established to "aid and promote, by financial assistance and otherwise, any and all aspects of legal education at Wake Forest University through the School of Law."

The Reynolds contribution has been placed in the University's investment pool, the income from the fund will be used for law school purposes in accordance with the Articles of Incorporation.

Directors of the Foundation are James W. Mason, Leon L. Rice, Jr., Philip B. Whiting, Lonnie B. Williams, Dr. James Ralph Scales, Dr. Edwin G. Wilson, Dr. Robert E. Lee, and Dean Pasco M. Bowman.

At the September 21 meeting of the board of directors of the foundation two new programs were authorized. The first will provide funds for hiring of student research assistants to aid the law faculty. The students will provide aid in researching writing and teaching materials.

Also, the board has approved funds for the employment of students to supervise the Legal Bibliography course offered to first year students. Beginning with the coming semester, the course will be divided into eight sections with one student assisting each section. The Board of Editors of the Wake Forest Law Review will serve as the section assistants.

NEWS BRIEFS

STATE BAR COUNCIL MEETS

For the first time in the history of the Council of the North Carolina State Bar, the Council has met on the campus of a law school. Wake Forest School of Law played host to the Bar Council at a meeting held April 16. The meeting was open to faculty and students and was conducted in the Courtroom. Leon Corbett, Sr. presided over the meeting.

$235,000 GIFT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Guy T. Carswell of Charlotte has made a challenge gift of more than $235,000 to the law school; alumni must raise an equal amount. The grant will be used for the $500,000 addition to the school. Dean Bowman said, "Mrs. Carswell's challenge gift obviously is a great opportunity for the school . . . We are grateful Mrs. Carswell has continued the long history of generosity established by her and her husband."

ORGANIZATIONAL NEWS PHI ALPHA DELTA

The academic year of 1971-72 began on a pleasant note that has become an annual event. This year, again, Timberlake Chapter received national recognition among student chapters by being named the winner of the fraternity's Continuing Excellence Award. Since 1966, Timberlake Chapter has ranked consistently either number one or two among student chapters of P.A.D.

This year Timberlake has changed its physical appearance by moving from its old location in Kitchin Dormitory to shared facilities with Phi Delta Phi in Huffman Hall. It is believed, though, that this physical change will not deter the spirit of the fraternity that has lead it to national recognition over the last six years. The professional program in the past has been an outstanding feature of Timberlake's activities and this year promises to be the best program yet. A look at the professional activities planned or those that have occurred by the time that this goes to press will serve as an example of our outstanding professional program. On September 22, Butch Zimmerman, the Solicitor of the 22nd Judicial District, visited with us and discussed the Solicitor's job. On October 6, we held our Formal Smoker, and another Timberlake alumni, Bruce Briggs, U. S. Attorney for the Western District of N. C., spoke to us. James Broyhill, the U. S. Congressman, visited on October 22 and Rufus Edmisten, Administrative Aide to Senator Sam Ervin, spoke on October 25. Finally, we will present an Inns of Court program on November 23. The subject will be labor law and there will be a lawyer representing the Schlitz Brewery management and a lawyer from the Teamsters Union present as members of the panel. As can be seen, the professional committee has planned some very useful and educational programs. We are also looking towards joint activities with the P.A.D. chapters at other law schools in the state. An invitation has already gone out to Ruffin Chapter at U.N.C., and we are hoping to host some of our fellow fraternity members at the November 23 Inns of Court program.

Socially, Timberlake again offers its usual escapes from the study of law for its members. The months of September and October were filled with football games and rush parties, highlighted by Professor James E. Sizemore and his Blue Grass Band. We are now planning our annual Homecoming Cocktail Party at Graylyn on November 6 from 8 p.m. to midnight. We will look forward to seeing as many of the Timberlake Alumni as can make it back for the Homecoming activities.

PHI DELTA PHI

April of last year marked the beginning of a new year for Phi Delta Phi with a change of administration for Ruffin Inn.

FALL, 1971

Those chosen to carry on the official duties of the fraternity were John May, Magister; Grey Goode, Exchequer; Max Busby, Clerk; and Mike Pezzicola, Historian. The majority of their work began with the opening of school for fall semester.

The most important activity for the Inn during Fall semester is fraternity rush for first year and transfer students. Our program was highlighted by two major events. During the first week of rush, the Phi's were host for an informal party at Tanglewood Park featuring an outstanding band. This was followed by our formal smoker. In an attempt to present a program which would be interesting and informative to both first year students and current brothers, four attorneys, representing various fields which a legal education prepares its graduates to pursue, were our guests. They were Henry J. C. Roemer, Jr., General Council, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; E. Lawrence Davis, member of the North Carolina House of Representatives and with the firm of Womble, Carlyle, Sandridge, and Rice in Winston-Salem; the Honorable James Exum, North Carolina Superior Court judge; and Mrs. Myressa Schoonmaker, President of NOW (National Organization of Women) in this area and with the firm of Westmoreland and Schoonmaker in Winston-Salem. Each speaker presented a short talk about his particular specialty and then participated in a discussion headed by Dean Pasco Bowman of various employment opportunities for law school graduates. Refreshments and questions followed the formal presentation.

Ruffin Inn continues to be quite active in national activities. Cash scholarship awards of $100 from the National were presented to brothers Bill Lambe of the current second year class and to Max Busby of the current third year class for having the highest averages in Ruffin Inn. The Inn should also benefit from a change in membership requirements made by the 40th Biennial Convention in Toronto in late August. The enactment allows women to become national members of Phi Delta Phi by eliminating the word male from the membership rules.

Locally, we have almost completed moving into Huffman Dormitory which is restricted in its use to only law students and other graduate students. The rooms and lounge areas have been partially renovated and a new carpet has recently been put down in the library.

Finally, the Phi's intramural football teams continue to dominate their league with both teams currently undefeated. The league championship will probably be decided when the A and B teams meet in October.

STUDENT BAR ASSOCIATION

As in past years, the Student Bar Association has cooperated with the Office of the Dean in helping with orientation for the incoming first year students. This year, however, orientation was quite unlike those of preceding years, and the student response was most favorable. The Student Bar participated in an orientation address during registration and sponsored a get acquainted afternoon barbeque during the first week-end of the school year at Graylyn Estate. Block seating for law students was provided at the Wake-Davidson football game, and an evening cocktail party followed.

The Student Bar has obtained space in this issue of the Jurist in lieu of its annual placement brochure. This change was made in order to receive a wider circulation as well as to gain an earlier publication date. It might also be noted that already the Student Bar has arranged interviews with prominent North Carolina and out of state law firms. The Student Bar is also working with the University Placement Service for those students who desire positions with industry.

At the present the Student Bar is planning for Law Day, arranging for speaker engagements, working with the Office of the Dean in establishing a Moot Court Board at the law school, and looking into the possibility of publishing an annually supplemented directory of all Wake Forest University School of Law graduates.

FACULTY NOTES

Dr. James A. Webster, Jr.

In addition to his consultation to the North Carolina Department of Justice, Professor Webster serves as educational consultant to the North Carolina Real Estate Licensing Board. He is continuing his work as chairman of the General Assembly's subcommittee on lien laws. This action completes the passage of a number of lien related statutes.

On October 28, 1971, at Southern Pines, Professor Webster participated in the Carolina Land Title Association Conference. Dr. Webster spoke on the topic "Statutory and Case Law Developments with Respect to Real Property in North Carolina."

Also, Dr. Webster finds time to serve as a Deacon of the First Baptist Church of Winston-Salem. And he is the President-elect of the Winston-Salem Lions Club which is the oldest in North Carolina, celebrating its 50th Anniversary this year.

Professor Richard G. Bell

Besides pursuing excellence in the field of teaching of the law, Professor Bell continues his work with the Administrative Procedure Drafting Committee of the General Statutes Commission. Professor Bell will soon publish two law review articles. One, "Negotiable Instruments; Bank and Customer Relations: A General Practitioner's Guide to the Uniform Commercial Code, Articles 3 and 4", will be published in the November issue of the Cumberland-Samford University Law Review. The second will be published in the January, 1972 issue of the Idaho Law Review and will be entitled "The Depository Bank as a Holder in Due Course".

Professor Bell again attended the annual meeting of the Southeastern Conference of the Association of American Law Schools, at Charlottesville, Virginia. At this meeting, Professor Bell was named to the Steering Committee of the Conference. This past summer Professor Bell's case book on negotiable instruments was produced in hard cover, bound form.

Dr. Robert E. Lee

Dr. Lee is in the process of compiling a cumulative supplement to North Carolina Family Law, to be published in the early part of 1972. It will contain all decisions and statutes since 1968.

Dr. Lee continues his work on the Drafting Committee on Decedents Estates Law for the General Assembly of North Carolina. The revisions of this committee will be submitted to the General Assembly in 1973.

Also, Dr. Lee continues to write "This Is The Law" for the North Carolina Bar Association. This is a weekly column which appears in over 100 North Carolina newspapers during three months of the Spring and Fall.

Dean Pasco M. Bowman

Presently, Dean Bowman is working on a book on Georgia Corporation Law. The Dean is also chairman of a planning subcommittee for The Institute on Business Associations and Partnerships under the auspices of the North Carolina Bar Association. A meeting of the Institute will take place at Wake Forest U. on January 21, 1972.

In March of 1971, Professor Corbett went to Brownsville, Texas for a Legislative Service Seminar on Criminal Code Revision. The seminar was sponsored by The Council of State Governments and The National Legislative Conference.

At Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia this past summer, he was visiting Professor of Corporate Finance and Wills. Professor Faris attended the Association of American Law Schools' Convention on Teaching of Law Outside of Law School in Chicago this past summer. He will serve as the Law School's representative to the AALS Convention in Chicago this December.

Finally, within a period of one year, Professor Faris has attended six Continuing Legal Education seminars in Virginia and Georgia. The seminars dealt primarily with Corporate Finance and Tax and Estate Planning.

Professor Henry C. Lauerman

Professor Henry C. Lauerman continues his fine work on the Drafting Committee on the Uniform Principal and Income Act for the General Statutes Commission. Also, Professor Lauerman wrote and delivered a paper "Collective Bargaining in the '70's" at the Institute on Labor Relations sponsored by the North Carolina Bar Foundation in October at Chapel Hill.

Currently Professor Lauerman is writing two articles. One article will be published in the Wake Forest Law Review and deals with the statute of limitations in products liability cases in North Carolina. Dr. Hugh Devine

This past summer Professor Devine taught at the Drake Law School in Iowa. Also in August, Professor Devine attended The Southeastern Law School Conference in Charlottesville, Virginia and concentrated on curriculum problems. Dr. Devine will publish an article in the forthcoming Wake Forest Law Review issue concerning freedom of expression in public schools.

THE WAKE FOREST LAW REVIEW: 1971-72

The Wake Forest Law Review began its life with the publication of the May 1965 one-issue volume called the Intramural Law Review of Wake Forest. That first volume consisted of 111 pages and represented the work product of six editors.

Today the Law Review is an official publication of the Wake Forest University School of Law. As such, the Law Review appears in an annual volume of four issues, consisting of approximately two hundred pages per issue. Each volume contains some 40 to 45 student-written Notes and Comments plus 15 Articles prepared by members of the academe and the practicing bar. To edit and research this great amount of published material requires the efforts of a well coordinated and highly complex organization directed and controlled by the Board of Editors.

The Board of Editors is the governing body of the Wake Forest Law Review, and is headed by the Editor-in-Chief, who is ultimately responsible for all functions of the Law Review. Besides the Editor-in-Chief, the Board of Editors consists of the Managing Editor and six Editors. The Managing Editor is responsible for the physical layout of the Review and heads the Business Staff.

The six Editors are the core of the editing process. To each Editor is assigned an Associate Editor and a staff made up of Editorial Staff members and Candidates. The Editor, Associate Editor and staff function as a team to research all written material scheduled for publication. This editing task, called the "spade," ensures absolute accuracy of all legal citations and is responsible for the Law Review's well deserved reputation of being legally reliable.

Business functions of the Law Review are conducted by the Business Staff under the direction of the Managing Editor, assisted by his Administrative Assistant. The Managers of subscriptions, advertising, printing, and finance complete the Business Staff.

Board members and Associate Editors, all third-year students, are selected by the outgoing Board of Editors, the selection being based on scholastic achievement, prior participation on the Review, leadership, and writing ability. Second and third-year students participate as members of the Editorial or Business Staff. Initial participation on the Law Review is through the Candidates' Program, Candidates being those students finishing in the top 20-25% of the first-year class and accepting invitations to join the Review. Successful completion of the Candidates' Program entitles the student to full staff membership on the Review and the opportunity to become a member of the Board of Editors or an Associate Editor in his third year.

From the six-editor Intramural Law Review of 1965, the Wake Forest Law Review of 1971-72 has grown to eight Board members, six Associate Editors, and thirty-five Editorial and Business Staff members. This growth will continue as the Law School expands. However, the framework of the Review is now complete. The Law Review is prepared for a bright future . . . the same future that awaits the Wake Forest University School of Law.

Editor-In-Chief

ENROLLMENT STATISTICS

Editor's Note: The administration of the law school has provided the following information on the present enrollment of the law school. These statistics are interesting in that they show our student body is still represented by a majority from North Carolina while there is a sizeable minority of students from other states mainly on the East Coast. Also North Carolina alumni may like to note how many law students come from their particular counties. It is evident from this information that Wake Forest is well represented by North Carolinians who after graduation usually remain in the state along with many of the out-of-state students who choose to remain rather than going elsewhere. Despite the localized nature of the school it is constantly improving its stature nationally with the notable number of out-of-state students.

The Challenge For Wake Forest Alumni!

P. B. Whiting, President
Class of 1961
President, Wake Forest Law
Alumni Association

Every alumnus of Wake Forest University School of Law has an opportunity to meet a challenge — a challenge that is of great significance to the Law School. How we rise to and meet this challenge will have a lasting and profound effect upon the future of the School of Law and its graduates who will enter the practice of law in the years to come.

The challenge is, of course, the Capital Funds Campaign to provide $500,000.00 for a major addition to the Law School building. This addition is planned to accommodate an expansion program aimed at these needs:

- (1) An increase in student body from the present 270 to 440 by 1975-76;
- (2) Additional faculty, to provide better faculty-student ratio;
- (3) Increased library space;
- (4) Two new classroom-auditoriums;
- (5) Faculty office and lounge space;
- (6) Student activities and lounge space.

Challenges are not new to Wake Forest School of Law or its alumni. The Law School's founding represented an immense challenge when Dean Gulley began it in 1893, and in forty years nearly one-half of North Carolina attorneys were trained at the School. The move from Wake Forest to Reynolda Campus in 1956 represented another tremendous challenge, and the Law School's alumni and friends contributed nearly $500,000.00 to make the present school a reality.

A generous gift has provided one-half of the required funds for this new building addition. Our challenge, therefore, is to provide pledges of the remaining $250,000.00 by November 6, 1971, when the Law School will award retroactive J. D. degrees in connection with Homecoming Weekend activities.

To meet the challenge, every Wake Forest law alumnus is being asked to pledge a contribution which may be spread over three years — 1971, 1972 and 1973. The Board of Visitors has provided Leon Rice and James Mason as Co-Chairmen of the overall Building Fund Campaign Committee, with some 30 members throughout North Carolina to head up smaller regional solicitation committees. The Law Alumni Association is backing up the Rice-Mason Committee in Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh and Winston-Salem, where law alumni are concentrated in numbers, with local solicitation committees headed by Lloyd Baucom, Dan Fouts, Sid Eagles and Murray Greason, respectively. Bill Straughan and the Alumni Office are doing a fine job in providing information and promotional data. Letters from Dean Pasco Bowman and Attorney General Robert Morgan have been mailed to all law alumni to inform them of the new building program. The objective is to have every Wake Forest law alumnus participate in this program to enlarge the Law School facilities and thus better serve an expanding student body.

The need is clear, the cause is worthy, the time is now, and the challenge must be met. On behalf of the Wake Forest Law Alumni Association, I urge every alumnus to take part in the campaign by making a prompt and generous pledge — so our goal will be reached by November 6, 1971.

A MESSAGE FROM THE N. C. BAR ASSOCIATION

Ralph N. Strayhorn
President
N. C. Bar Association

The North Carolina Bar Association was born at an organizational meeting on February 10, 1899 in Raleigh, at which time 157 charter members were enrolled. From its founding its ranks have swelled to 3,000 members.

In 1926 a committee was appointed to study the incorporation of the Bar with authority to examine, license and disbar attorneys, and by 1932 a bill was drawn creating The North Carolina State Bar, which is a quasi-administrative agency deriving its authority from the North Carolina General Assembly.

At this point in time it was thought by some that this would be the end of the North Carolina Bar Association. History has proved, however, that a division of the functions of The North Carolina State Bar, whose primary function is to carry out the examination of prospective attorneys, the licensing of attorneys and disbarment of attorneys as well as rendering opinions on matters of legal ethics on the one hand, and the North Carolina Bar Association, a voluntary organization, which serves its members, the bench and the public through 24 standing committees and 17 special committees is an ideal organizational setup for the lawyers of North Carolina. Space does not permit the listing of all standing and special committees. Some of the standing committees are the committees on Continuing Legal Education, Bar Notes, Legal Aid, Legislative and Law Reform and Public Relations. Some of the special committees are Automobile Accident Reparations, Court Study, Practical Training and the Penal System Study Committee.

In 1955 at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Bar Association, Governor Luther Hodges charged the Bar Association to reorganize and modernize the state courts. It was from this beginning that the Association appointed a special committee on court study headed by the late J. Spencer Bell, later Circuit Judge of the 4th Judicial Circuit, to head up this very important committee. The study required over three years to complete. Three North Carolina foundations contributed the sum of $85,000 to the Association to finance this work. The General Assembly submitted a Constitutional Amendment to the people of North Carolina authorizing the adoption of a new judicial system for North Carolina. As a result of its passage, the Legislature enacted certain statutes phasing in the new court system as we know it today beginning in December, 1966 and finally being completed in December, 1970.

More recently at the request of Governor Scott at the annual meeting in June 1970, the Association agreed to undertake a thorough study of the North Carolina Penal System. By March 15, 1971 the Committee had invested 3,000 lawyer hours in this study and submitted to the Governor an Interim Report calling for reforms which required administrative action as well as action by the General Assembly. The Governor has requested this Committee to continue its work including a study of the juvenile correction system of the State, and the Committee is now engaged in the juvenile study and plans to make a report on juvenile corrections during the early part of 1972.

In the field of public information, the North Carolina Bar Association in cooperation with The North Carolina State Bar, is laying the ground work for an informational service in order better to inform the public about the law, the courts, the judges and the lawyers and what all this means in a free society. Such program of public information will be a matter of public service and at the same time place in proper perspective our courts, our judges and those of us in the profession who practice in those courts.

Our association is privileged to have a dedicated fifteen man Board of Governors in addition to its officers and staff and 41 committee chairmen and members of the respective committees who are dedicated to service to the bench, the Bar and the public. Through this Association the lawyers of North Carolina can make a contribution to the legal profession and to the public which it serves.

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF LAW

1972 GRADUATES

Each year, the graduating law class has prepared a graduate brochure to assist in placing class members with suitable employers. This combined endeavor of the Jurist staff and Student Placement Committee hopefully will do more. At a minimum, we want to make you aware that a student organization exists to facilitate your efforts not only in contacting the law school in search of prospective employees but also in interviewing individual members of the 1972 graduating class.

By contacting the Student Placement Committee, you will ensure that all students will be made aware of your visit to the school. The committee will prepare a background information sheet on each interested student to be forwarded to you for your perusal and possible screening. Also, an interview schedule will be arranged within a time frame you specify; however, it is recommended that interviews be of at least twenty minutes duration. Any further arrangements that you deem necessary will be completed by the committee, e. g., meals, overnight accommodations. Upon your arrival, a student will be present to greet you and show you to the designated interview room. Also, a copy of the interview schedule will be made available if not previously provided. Beyond this point, it is anticipated that any contact between the firm and the student or students selected would be on a personal basis. However, if the placement committee can be of any further assistance, we welcome that opportunity. Realizing that some of you have established old and trusted relationships with members of the law faculty and prefer to screen prospective associates through them, the committee will provide any assistance it can in this regard.

Although concerned primarily with placing third year students, the placement committee is anxious to assist first and second year students seeking positions as summer clerks with law firms. Basically, the same procedure as outlined will be followed in placing any student from the school. Let us emphasize, however, that these procedures are not concrete and the student committee is not inflexible. Of course, we welcome placement opportunities, and if these measures do not best serve your interests, use the method you find most convenient. We hope to avoid formality while at the same time provide a service.

If any employer determines that he is unable to visit the school but would prefer to have interested students visit him, we will make the class aware of the opportunity and provide background information sheets as available.

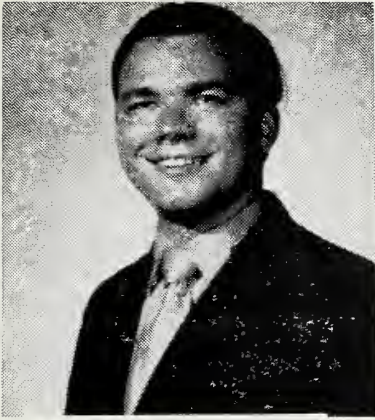

Again we welcome the opportunity to assist you and look forward to seeing you at the law school.

WALLACE W. DIXON
